

LOCAL OFFICERS
ARREST BRITTON

Columbus Man Picked Up Here is Returned and Will Be Questioned About His Wife's Death.

DECLARED HE IS INNOCENT

Death of Mrs. Britton Occurred a Short Time After Husband and Wife Engage in Quarrel.

Chief of Police Abell received a message from Chief Cooper of Columbus yesterday afternoon asking him to watch for George Britton of that city who was wanted there so that he could be questioned regarding the sudden death of his wife. Mrs. Britton died Thursday afternoon after she and her husband had engaged in a quarrel and it was not known whether she had committed suicide or had been murdered.

Chief of Police Abell and Officer
Thompson watched the south bound interurban cars after the message was received, and late in the afternoon found Britton on Indianapolis Ave. They had little trouble in locating the man as a careful description had been given by the Columbus officers. When approached, Britton acknowledged his name and made no effort to resist arrest. The Columbus officers were notified that their man was being held here and an officer came down and took him back to Columbus.

Britton did not know that his wife was dead until Chief Abell told him and the man seemed to be visibly affected by the news. He told the officer that he was not guilty of any wrong doing and that his wife had evidently committed suicide. He stated that as he was leaving his home, after the quarrel, he noticed his wife put some white powder into a glass of water and drink it, but as he had seen her do that before he did not think anything of the matter. He further stated that he had made every effort to provide a good home for his wife but that she had been unfaithful to him and that the conditions at his home had been very unpleasant.

Yesterday afternoon Britton said
he went to his home and upon opening a bureau drawer found a picture of his wife and another man with a note written on the back of the photograph. He said that he had done everything possible for the woman, but when he saw the picture he told her that he was going to leave her at once. He took several of his personal belongings to the home of his mother and packed his trunk and started for Vincennes where he had secured employment.

The officers here do not believe that Britton is guilty of murdering his wife, and are of the opinion that his statements were true. It is not known what action will be taken at Columbus regarding the case.

RAIN COMES AT GOOD TIME.

Corn and Other Growing Crops in Need of More Rain.

The farmers are rejoicing over the rainfall and declare that it will be very helpful to the corn and other growing crops. The corn is looking fine in most sections of the county, although in several localities the ground was getting dry and a good rain was needed. Most of the farmers have completed planting their corn and the rain comes at a most opportune time. In a few places the ground was so dry that seed failed to sprout and it was feared that it would be necessary to replant.

The rain will also be beneficial to the wheat fields and will aid in making a bigger crop. The harvest will be late this year, according to the farmers who have kept in touch with the condition, and it is probably that very little wheat will be threshed before the middle of July this summer.
The harvest usually begins the last of June or the first of July. In some sections of the county the wheat is almost as good as usual, but the majority of the fields are very light, and it is estimated that there will be about one-third of the usual crop harvested.
It is said, however, that the quality will be good, and as the price promises to be better than the average,
the farmers who will have a good crop will get large returns.

The outlook for the oats crop is fair. Many of the farmers were not able to get in all the oats they had expected to, on account of the continued wet weather, but the fields are looking good. A good price for oats is also promised.

The majority of the farmers are busy now cutting clover, and it is reported that the quality all over the county is good. New clover hay is finding a ready market at prices varying from $12 to $15 per ton depending upon the quality and the condition of the market. There are also several alfalfa fields in this vicinity and the first crop is being cut. Alfalfa has proven profitable to the farmers and many are expecting to put in several fields next year. It is stated that the crop is sure and that it can be marketed at a good price every year. Since three cuttings can be made from each field the returns are said to be larger than from clover, and it is no harder on the land than other crops.

YOUNG AUTOISTS

Make Long Trip To Indianapolis
Without Trouble.

Masters John Lyman and Meedy Blish, the youngest automobile drivers in Seymour, took their little Flanders touring car on its first long run yesterday, making the round trip to Indianapolis and return in a little over ten hours running time. They went by the way of Azalia and over the Three Notch Road out of Franklin, so that the recorder showed 142 miles for the whole trip. They divided the running time about equally between them and made the whole run without a bobble of any sort. Although "Seymour broke," they crossed Washington street on Meridian under the eye of the big policeman and encircled the Monument so that they could say they really were in the town. They stopped at the Franklin garage on their return to replenish their supply of gasoline and have the running parts looked over, but they say this was not necessary at all, and they wanted only to do the whole thing and be sure and visit a public garage.

They feel that the Flanders is the only car and it certainly has worked out well in their hands.

CASE SETTLED

Francis M. Peek Gives Quit Claim
Deed to C. M. Gibbs.

The case of Charles M. Gibbs vs.
Francis M. Peek et al to quite title to 80 acres of land in Hamilton township, was settled out of court Thursday. The case was filed in the Jackson circuit court but was venued to Scott county and was set for trial yesterday.

This is the case in which the names of F. M. Peek and his wife, Luella Peek, are said to have been forged to a deed conveying the 80 acres to Mr.
Christian of Indianapolis. It is also alleged that the names of Mr. Peek and his wife were forged to a deed
for a house and lot in Mooresville, which were taken in on the trade. The real estate, which is involved in the deal, changed hands several times after the original transaction was made, and the Mooresville property finally came into the ownership of Mr. Gibbs.

It was after he purchased the property that the validity of the signatures to the deed were mentioned.

Under the terms of settlement between Mr. Gibbs and Mr. Peek, each party pays one-half of the cost and Mr. Peek delivers a quit claim deed for the 80 acres to Mr. Gibbs. Other parties, who were implicated in the deal, agreed to reimburse Mr. Peek for his loss, and in this way the matter was simplified so that the case could be settled without much difficulty.

GRANTED DIVORCE
IN MARION COUNTY

Mrs. Emma Jones, Formerly of This City, Given a Decree From Frank Jones on Desertion Grounds.

BIGAMY CHARGE STILL PENDING

Jones Held in Marion County Jail Awaiting Trial Upon the Affidavit Filed Some Time Ago.

A divorce has been granted in the Marion circuit court to Mary Jones from her husband, Frank Jones. Both of the parties formerly lived in this city. By a decree of the court, the plaintiff's maiden name, Mary Emma Thomas, was restored.

The defendant, Frank Jones, has been in the lime light recently, having been arrested upon the charge of bigamy and also of wife desertion, the affidavits having been filed by the plaintiff in the divorce case. Jones was sent to the state prison several years ago upon a charge of larceny, and served a term of two years. Shortly after he was released, he was convicted upon a similar offense and returned to the Michigan City State Prison where he served another year, after which he was paroled and placed in charge of a local men who agreed to keep him employed and make the necessary reports to the prison authorities. While he was on parole his record was clean and he was finally released.

In April Mrs. Jones learned that her former husband had been married at Indianapolis and instituted bigamy proceedings against him upon the grounds that he had never been divorced. The records in the Jackson circuit court show that she applied for a divorce several months ago upon the grounds of desertion but that the decree was never issued because of a failure to pay the court costs.

She declared that they lived happily together, but after he returned home after serving his second sentence, he failed to provide for her properly and that she was compelled to make her own living.

When the bigamy proceedings were filed, Jones said that he was living happily with Mrs. Jones No. 2, but when he learned that he had not been granted a divorce from his first wife, he instituted proceedings at once to annul the marriage with Mrs. Jones
2. However, it is said that the records in the Marion circuit court do not show that such annulment proceedings were filed.

The bigamy charge has not yet come to trial, and Jones is being held in the Marion County jail awaiting the action of the court. It is believed that the trial will be held some time this fall.

DISTRICT CONVENTION

Delegates of Jennings, Scott and Rip-

The democratic judicial convention of Jennings, Scott and Ripley counties will be held at North Vernon tomorrow. The convention will be composed of thirty delegates, of which ten are from Jennings, six from Scott and fourteen from Ripley.

There are two candidates for the judgeship, Samuel B. Wells, of Scott county and Robert Creigmile, of Osgood. The delegation from Scott will give Wells the entire vote, while the delegates from Ripley will give their undivided support to Creigmile. The Jennings county delegation is not instruction, but will vote for the Ripley county man, it is believed.

Joseph W. Verberg, the present prosecutor will be a candidate for re-nomination and will have no opposition.

OKLAHOMA'S TWO
DECIDED FOR TAFT

Contests of Delegates From Third District Are Disposed Of By The Committee.

OTHERS ARE BEING CONSIDERED

Contests of 172 Delegates Have P Settled, 159 in Favor of the dent and 18 for Roosevelt

Chicago, June 14.—When the publican national committee met 9:20 o'clock this morning to reconsideration of the contests seats in the national convention, to ty members were present.

The Third Oklahoma district contest was taken up first and after hearing the evidence the committee decided favor of Taft. In this district Roosevelt forces declared that delegates were outnumbered and refused to go to the hall where the convention was called to meet, holding their convention elsewhere. The Taft delegates, on the other hand, asserted that they controlled and organized the Third district convention and that the Roosevelt wing then bolted.

A. A. Davidson, appearing for the Roosevelt contestants, said the question as to which set of delegates should be seated hinged on the legality of two conventions held at Tulsa on the same day. With a majority of delegates in favor of Roosevelt, he said, the convention was held according to the call. Sixteen of the nineteen counties were represented by 361 delegates, declared Mr. Davidson.

Joseph A. Gill, heading the Taft delegation, declared that just before the committee met at Tulsa, on March 14, the committee "deposed" as chairman W. S. Cochran, who favored Roosevelt, "because of his arbitrary and irregular rulings and because he had changed his residence and was no longer a member of the committee." Six other Roosevelt men also were excluded because their proxies were not acceptable, he said.

"The bolters proceeded to hold a convention in the opera house, contrary to the official call," declared Mr.
Gill. "This meeting had no temporary roll of delegates prepared by the congressional committee and had no credentials from the several counties."

When the committee met today it had contests affecting eighty delegates to dispose of, having previously decided contests affecting 172 delegates. Seats had been given to thirteen Roosevelt men and to 159 Taft delegates.

It was hoped by the national committee that they could dispose of the Oklahoma, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas cases.

Flag Day was observed with fitting exercises in many parts of the state today. Special patriotic programs were held in a number of the public schools which have not yet dismissed for the summer. However, the day is being quietly observed here without special exercises.

A daughter was born today to Mr.
and Mrs. Ben Smith at Woodstock.

Lesson XI. June 16

CHRIST'S WITNESS TO JOIN THE BAPTIST. Matt. 11:2-19.

LEAD TEXT—Among those that are born of women there is not a greater prophet than John the Baptist: but he that is least in the kingdom of God is greater than he.—Luke 7:28.

LEAST IN THE KINGDOM.

Matthew xi, 2-19—June 16.

"Amongst them that are born of women there is none greater than John; yet the least in the kingdom of God is greater than he."—Luke vii, 28.

IT WOULD BE difficult to express a higher tribute to John the Baptist than Jesus paid him in our text. If John was so great a man, from the Divine standpoint, why did our Lord declare that the least in the Kingdom of Heaven would be greater than John?

When we turn on the light contained in the word "Kingdom," the entire subject becomes clear. God had promised a Messianic Kingdom, and Jesus came that He might be the Head of that Kingdom. The steps leading to its honors were steps of obedience to God, unto death, and these steps Jesus began to take. On the cross He finished the work of proving Himself loyal.

Jesus thus became the Great Conqueror, the great King of Glory, being exalted to the Heavenly state in His resurrection. But He was to have associated with Him in His Throne, His Bride class; as the Great Priest, He was to have an under-priesthood, a "Royal Priesthood," as the Great Judge of the world, He was to have associates; as St. Paul declares, "Know ye not that the saints shall judge the world?"—I Corinthians vi, 2.

In the Divine Plan this company of associates of Jesus were as much fore-ordained as was He. As it was necessary for Him to undergo trials and testings, so with those called to be His associates—"He was tempted in all points like as we are." Thus His Message is, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with Me in My Throne, even as I overcame and am set down with My Father in His Throne." These must be followers in His footsteps; none could precede Him.

"Some Better Thing For Us."

We are not to infer that those glorious characters who lived before Christ's time were less faithful than the Gospel Church, but merely that God promised them the earthly perfection, while He has promised the Bride of Christ the heavenly perfection. They will not, like the remainder of mankind, come forth to attain perfection gradually during the thousand years of Messiah's reign; the record is that they will come forth perfect human beings. That will be the reward of their faithfulness.

St. Paul explains the entire matter in Hebrews, the 11th chapter. He declares, "All these died in faith, not having received the (earthly) things promised to them, God having provided some better thing for us (the Church), that they, without us, should not be made perfect." The glorification of the Church, her resurrection to perfection, must be accomplished before the blessings through them can proceed to the natural seed of Abraham, and through Israel to all nations.—Heb. xi, 38-40.

Not the Bride but the Friend.

John the Baptist declared, "He that hath the Bride is the Bridegroom, but the friend of the Bridegroom, hearing His voice, rejoiceth greatly. This my joy therefore is fulfilled." (John iii, 29.) He perceived that in God's providence he had a very honorable and blessed station and work to accomplish, but he was to be neither the Bridegroom nor a member of the Bride class.

And the other Ancient Worthies will not be disappointed when they come forth in the resurrection to find a Bride class selected to a higher place than theirs. On the contrary, their cup of blessing being full, and never having been begotten to a spirit nature, they will not be able to comprehend any blessings higher than their own.

Just, for instance, as a fish in the water, seeing a bird flying in the air, would not be jealous of the bird and its greater freedom, but, on the contrary, would be better satisfied in the water, its natural element.

In this lesson Jesus intimates all the above. "The Law and the Prophets were until John." He was the last of the Prophets. Jesus further declared, "If ye are willing to receive it, this is Elias which was to come." That is, those of you who are able to appreciate the matter may understand that John the Baptist did a work in full accord with the prophecy that Elijah must first come as a reformer before Messiah.

Addressing the multitudes the Great Teacher inquired, Why did you go out to see John? Was it because God spoke through him as a Prophet as the wind makes music through the reeds? Or did you go out to see a man in fine clothing and of kingly state?

What really drew to John's teaching was that he was God's Prophet; as it is written, "Behold, I send My messenger before Thy face, who shall prepare the way before Thee." This preparation for Jesus John made with the Jewish nation. His message was that the Kingdom of Heaven was to be offered to them, and that only the holy would be ready to receive it.

SYNDICATING KINDNESS.

Congress has declined to incorporate the hundred million dollar Rockefeller philanthropic trust, and perhaps it is just as well; not so much because the trust might in the dim future somehow menace the liberties of the people, as because the refusal is indirectly a blow at the tendency of the time to syndicate and organize all altruistic endeavor. Individualism is what we should encourage in this field, says the Columbia (S. C.) State. The syndication method excels, perhaps, in "efficiency," if one appraises philanthropy by the rate and degree in which it translates good will on the one hand into relief and uplift on the other. But we have never understood that the good of the recipient was the whole of a gift's blessings. Well-doing at second hand is not comparable with well-doing that requires individual thought, anxiety and self-denial. One's sense of humanity and his powers of compassion atrophy under the syndication system, but where one performs himself the maximum of kindly acts, philanthropic virtue is constantly being elicited, exercised and matured. It is good to see a tendency checked which in its logical extension would cause people to repose a smug content in the doing of good on the installment plan, as they might pay for a piece of furniture.

Young men who have completed the courses of study prescribed in the University of Wisconsin's College of Agriculture are in demand at good salaries, according to the statistics of the college, says the Chicago Record-Herald. When the university closed in 1911 the demand for agricultural graduates could not be supplied and all the members of the year's class had found places at salaries ranging from $600 to $3,000 a year. Places, that would have paid $450,000 in salaries could not be filled because of the lack of qualified men. This showing is an indication of the change that is coming generally in agricultural methods. Rule-of-thumb, haphazard methods will not do on the farm any more than in the well-managed factory. There must be truly scientific farming, the combination of sound principles with the results of experience. Evidently the owners of farms see the change at hand and are eager to avail themselves of the knowledge possessed by the Wisconsin graduates.

According to the slang published as used in a noted woman's college, it is not strange that its further use has been prohibited by the college authorities. Some of the ordinary slang of the day is picturesque and probably would be missed, but the habit of writing and speaking accurate English, supposed to be one encouraged in college training, is not helped by the silly jargon which is held by college boys and girls to be characteristic and distinctive. For the good of the language, it is to be hoped the authorities will be successful in their stand.

A little while ago some lady proposed that Chicago should have a theater for women and now it is suggested that there shall be a theater for children. Why not have a theater for gentlemen?

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

LET'S FIGURE.

Here is the story of a man who shot his wife and little boy while they were asleep and afterward spent the night with a paramour. It is stated the man was a "highly respected citizen."

Now, let's figure.

Pull your chair up to the library table, sharpen your pencil and figure. Take a sheet of paper and put down at the top X = ? How did the man fall?

Now—

It is scarcely to be denied that he lost his character before he lost his reputation. Is it not so?

A few more figures.

The body and the mind are Siamese twins. What affects one affects the other. This man, it is of record, poisoned his mind by liquors. He shattered his nerves by dissipation and abused his body by excesses.

Another sheet of paper, please.

Working both ends—body and mind—against the middle, what wonder standards of conduct were lowered. Brain cells broken down, moral sense blunted.

Still another sheet.

The man was not all in, but he was falling down. The process was at first gradual, and it did not make a showing on the outside. But on the inside he was a bundle of diseased organs, erratic impulses that led downward, a tigerish appetite.

One more sheet.

It is certain this man was not born a derelict. He made himself what he became. Shaping himself as he did, might he not have made himself different had he tried?

Certainly.

Then he was personally responsible for his fall and the foul deed? Fully so, both legally and morally responsible. Deliberately and wittingly he had immersed himself, body and soul, in the deeps of hell.

Now let's foot up the figures.

What is the sum? Because the arithmetic of a moral decline may be just as accurate, mind you, as the law of a falling body.

First.—A man, free moral agent, may incarnate himself into a devil if he chooses so to do.

Second.—He may do this with open eyes both as to the progress and the outcome, knowing and even fearing what may be the end.

Third.—From the figures and the casting up of the account we may draw the moral that—

The Following Statement Should Form Conclusive Proof of Merit to Every Seymour Reader.

Could stronger proof of the merit of any remedy be desired than the statements of grateful endorsers who say their confidence has been undiminished by lapse of time? These are the kind of statements that are appearing constantly in your local papers for Doan's Kidney Pills. They are twice-told and confirmed with new enthusiasm. Can any reader doubt the following? It's from a resident of Seymour.

Mrs. Henry Moritz, 528 W. Laurel St., Seymour, Ind., says: "I suffered intensely from lameness across the small of my back and at night I was unable to get my proper rest. The kidney secretions were unnatural and I also had headaches. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me and I am now free from kidney complaint. (Statement given in 1906.)"

TIME IS THE TEST

Mrs. Moritz was interviewed on April 14, 1910, and she said: "During the years that have passed since Doan's Kidney Pills cured me, I have had little or no trouble from my kidney trouble. I have received." neys. It is a pleasure to publicly acknowledge the benefit I have received."

KIDNEY TROUBLE

CASES LUMBAGO.

Remarkable Story About Great Remedy.

I cannot refrain from writing to say that your Swamp-Root has benefited me greatly. Last year I had a severe attack of lumbago. Was bad for a long time, and on seeing your advertisement, I determined to give it a trial. I did so and in two weeks was cured. I gave a bottle to a poor woman who could scarcely walk. She came to me in four days to tell me she was all right and most thankful. I had another attack last November and was so bad I could not rise from my chair without assistance and could hardly lace up my boot. I at once sent for more Swamp-Root and after taking two bottles, I am more than glad that I am well again. My age being seventy-three, I am the more convinced of the excellence of Swamp-Root.

TOO MUCH STRAIN ON WINGS OF AEROPLANE

Cause of Disaster Which Overtook Army Aviators.

Washington, June 13.—According to the preliminary findings of the official board of inquiry, unwise manipulation of the aeroplane in which the Wright aviator, Al Welsh, and Lieutenant Leighton W. Hazelhurst of the army were killed at the army aviation field was the cause of the accident.

It was found that just before the accident, Welsh, operating the machine, brought it down from the heights at a very sharp angle. He proposed, it is believed, to gather enough momentum on the slide down to give him a flying start upward when he should begin his climb to meet the conditions required by the war department for the acceptance of the machine, namely that he reach an altitude of 2,000 feet in ten minutes. Welsh made the descent within about fifty feet of the ground with engine almost cut off. Then at the moment of turning upward he put on all possible power. The board found that the sudden turning upward together with speeding the propellers at the same moment, suddenly placed too great a strain upon the wings of the aeroplane, that they crumpled up, permitting the machine to fall.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Hazelhurst, parents of Lieutenant Hazelhurst, are now on their way to Washington from Evansville, Ind.

S.S.S. PURELY VEGETABLE

The absolute vegetable purity of S.S.S. has always been one of the strongest points in its favor, and is one of the principal reasons why it is the most widely known and universally used of all blood medicines. A great many of the so-called blood purifiers are really nothing more than strong mineral mixtures which act so unpleasantly and disastrously on the delicate membranes and tissues of the stomach and bowels, that even if such treatment purified the blood, the condition in which the digestive system is left would often be more damaging to the health than the original trouble. Not so with S.S.S.—it is the greatest of all blood purifiers, and at the same time is an absolutely safe and harmless remedy. It is made entirely of the healing and cleansing extracts and juices of roots, herbs and barks, each of which is in daily use in some form by physicians in their practice. Years of work and research have proven S.S.S. to contain everything necessary to purify the blood and at the same time supply the system with the purest and best tonic effects. S.S.S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison and all other blood troubles, and it leaves the system in perfect condition when it has purified the blood. Book containing much valuable information on the blood and any medical advice desired sent free to all who write.

FAILED TO HEED WARNING GIVEN

National Organizer of Social Laborites Mobbed.

HE ATTACKED THE CATHOLICS

This Proved More Than the Temper of a Street Crowd of Butte Miners Could Stand, and Carlson Only Escaped With His Life by Running Into a Nearby Theater, Where He Was Rescued by the Police.

Butte, Mont., June 14.—While making a street speech last night, Carlson of Tacoma, national organizer of the Socialist Labor party, was mobbed and only escaped with his life by running into a theater on Park street, where he hid until rescued by the police and taken to prison for protection. For some nights Industrial Workers of the World speakers have been denouncing the government and the flag on the streets, but were not molested until they attempted their attacks on the Catholic church. Then they were hustled out of town to avoid violence. Carlson when he appeared last night was warned as to what he might expect. The streets were crowded with miners and other laboring men who had been celebrating miners' union day. A small band of men listened to Carlson until he referred to the Catholic church as the biggest enemy of the workingman and declared that the church was fighting Socialism because if Socialism prevailed the church would be put out of business. He said he would mention "some of the rottenness of the Catholic church," and as he said that, someone pulled from under him the box on which he had been standing. As he fell someone struck him and the crowd rushed upon him and kicked him, but he escaped to the sidewalk and into the theater.

"Captain Koeppenick" Again Pining for the Limelight.

Berlin, June 14.—Wilhelm Voight, the robber of Koeppenick, a shoemaker, who in 1906 visited Koeppenick, posing as an army captain, and arrested the mayor and burgomaster and sent them away under guard and then looted the town treasury, setting the whole empire rocking with laughter, has succeeded again in hoaxing the newspapers. Wednesday's papers published a story that Voight, who served four years in prison for his escapade at Koeppenick, had died in London on June 9. Voight is very much alive. He himself spread the report for the purpose of again attracting national attention to himself.

FEUDIST SENDS GREETING

Hatfield-McCoy Warfare Believed Ended For All Time.

Bluefield, W. Va., June 14.—That the Hatfield-McCoy feud, one of the oldest and bloodiest in the history of the West Virginia-Kentucky border, has ended for all time, was indicated when Dr. H. J. Hatfield, cousin of Devil Anse Hatfield, leader of the Hatfield clan, received a telegram from A. J. McCoy, leader of the McCoy faction, endorsing his candidacy for governor of West Virginia. The telegram read: "Greetings to Dr. Hatfield from a McCoy. Congratulations. That you may win in November is my desire." Dr. Hatfield was nominated for governor at the Republican primaries.

Washington, June 14.—The house refused to appropriate an additional sum for the preparation and mounting of skins collected by Theodore Roosevelt on his African hunting trip. Former Speaker Cannon sought to have the $250,000 appropriation for the purpose increased to $325,000. This was defeated and a request for $300,000 also was lost.

SOPHIE WRIGHT LEFT RICH LEGACY BEHIND

Most Beloved Woman in the South Is Dead.

New Orleans, June 14.—One of the most beloved women in the south, Miss Sophie B. Wright, often referred to as "New Orleans's foremost citizen, is dead of heart disease.

Miss Wright was known all over the country as a leader in education and as one of the deepest thinkers among the women of the south. She was not only admired for her high attainments as a teacher and as a leader, but she was beloved by thousands of people in New Orleans and throughout the south. She was prominent in most of the things that concerned the welfare of the city and state. Her school, the Home Institute, has become one of the most successful among the girls' schools of the south. Sophie Wright was a cripple and went around in a steel harness and on crutches. She was so poor that she taught all day in a private school to earn money to maintain her free school at night. Yet she came to be known as the "first citizen of New Orleans," and to be described as "leading the most effective and the most beautiful life New Orleans has known in this generation."

OLD GLORY

"Oh, Long May It Wave;
O'er the Land of the Free,
And the Home of the Brave."

It was during the war of 1812, the centenary of whose beginning will be celebrated on June 18, that "The Star Spangled Banner" was written. The British had already sacked and burned the government buildings in Washington and on their return had attempted to take Baltimore, in which they were defeated. Francis Scott Key was aboard a ship in the Chesapeake during the bombardment. On seeing the American flag still aloft in the morning he wrote the song. Several claims have been made as to the origin of the flag. The matter is not settled. The symbolism is better known. The stripes stand for the thirteen original colonies, the stars for the states. As to the color scheme, the generally accepted version is that the blue stands for the heavens, to which the colonies made their appeal; the white represents purity, and the red is emblematic of liberty.

HAS NO FAITH IN THE SINCERITY OF GOMEZ

Cuban Administration Getting In Bad at Washington.

Washington, June 14.—Each day faith in the sincerity of the Cuban government in the present crisis in the republic is lessening in Washington. The news that General Montenegro has extended the amnesty to the negro rebels has strengthened the conviction here that the Gomez government is bidding for peace and will consent to deal with the negroes. That General Montenegro should at this stage of the proceedings give the negroes until June 22 to lay down their arms and receive full pardon is regarded here as preposterous.

Playing for Position.

The charge is made here that President Gomez is playing for a position from which he can ask the consent of the United States for a loan to his government. Time and again since the first days of the negro revolt the Cuban government has named "ten days" as the limit of the life of the uprising. The state department, however, has yet to receive concrete proof of a determined effort upon the part of the Gomez government to put down the uprising.

Reports are being given out daily to describe the encounters between the government soldiers and the rebels. Yet there is no evidence that a single rebel leader has been killed or captured, or even that any one of them has been pursued or attacked. Meanwhile the United States is using men and ships to do what it is the place of the Cuban government to do.

WAR DECLARED ON "JOHNNIES"

Street Mashers at Valparaiso Up Against It.

HUSBANDS HAVE ORGANIZED

Wives of the Members of the Valparaiso Athletic Club Volunteer as De-coys For Light-Brained Johnnies in College Town, and When the Masher Steps Forth With His Talk, He Is Met by Husband.

Valparaiso, Ind., June 14.—The members of the Valparaiso Athletic club, an organization of young married people, have started a campaign to exterminate the street masher in this city, following ineffectual attempts of the police to break up the practice of accosting unaccompanied women. The wives of the members are used as decoys for the mashers. They traverse singly the haunts of the "Johnnies," with their husbands within easy reach. As soon as a masher steps forth with his talk, the husbands hurry forward, seize the fellow and administer a hearty beating. Since the club took up this plan, June 1, five have been roughly handled.

BRINGS BRIDE HOME

The Alsops Return From Belated Honeymoon in Europe.

New York, June 13.—Colonel Edward B. Alsop, who at the age of seventy-five, astonished his friends last February by taking a seventeen-year-old bride, walked into the Thirty-fourth street entrance of the Waldorf.

"Been to Europe," the colonel observed, and he leaned over the register and inscribed upon the page "Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Alsop." "Had a fine trip; over there four weeks."

This was the belated honeymoon. Mrs. Alsop shortly after appeared in Peacock alley and every eye immediately became fixed upon her. In one hand she carried a powder puff and in the other a package of cigarettes.

POURED $70,000,000 INTO BANKERS' LAPS

The Government's Part In the Panic of 1907.

New York, June 14.—The part that the government took in allaying the panic of 1907 by sending $42,000,000 to national banks in this city and $28,000,000 to banks in other parts of the country, was explained to the "money trust" probers by Geo. Cortelyou, president of the Consolidated Gas company, former secretary of the treasury. He told of a conference he had while a member of the cabinet in New York on the evening of Oct. 22, 1907, with New York bankers at the Hotel Manhattan. At this meeting he said he gave his word to the bankers that he would do all that he possibly could to bring about relief in the financial situation. He then issued a statement, he said, as a result of the conference that the government would at once put $25,000,000 at the disposal of the New York banks in addition to $6,000,000 which he had ordered on Oct. 22 sent to many banks. He declared that nothing was agreed upon in the conference exactly where the money was to go, neither was there any differentiation between strictly commercial business and relieving the tightness of the money market on the stock exchange.

Mr. Cortelyou could not remember some of the details of placing the money in the banks. He explained that the $25,000,000 he sent to the New York banks was not necessarily the same money that was loaned on the exchange, saying that at least $10,000,000 of the amount, it was understood, was intended for the relief of trust companies. He said altogether $36,000,000 of government funds had been used at that time for the relief of banks and trust companies. The principal relief work, he admitted, was carried on by Mr. Morgan.

The committee then adjourned sine die, the future meetings to take place in Washington.

GOOD WORK

First District War on Rats Was Well Organized.

Princeton, Ind., June 13.—Nearly 4,000 rats were killed in Gibson county on the annual rat day. J. R. Strickland, who started the movement, was more than pleased with the response made in this county.

Hunters report a marked difference in the number of rats to be found as compared with last year, showing the good that the two years of killing has already brought about. Other counties of the First district reported killings of from 100 to 1,000. Altogether it is estimated that between 6,000 and 7,000 rats were put out of the way in the First Indiana district.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous services.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

CAMPING PARTIES WILL BE POPULAR

Hundreds of Seymour People Will Spend Their Vacation Along the Banks of the Rivers.

IDEAL GROUNDS ARE AVAILABLE

Locations and Conditions on White River Are Among the Best Found in the State.

Hundreds of Seymour people will spend their vacation this summer along the banks of the river, and many of them are already making preparations for their annual camping trip. An outing of a week or ten days has become a very popular method of spending a vacation and a greater number of camping parties were organized last year than ever before. However, from present indications the number in 1911 will be exceeded this summer and a new record will be established before the close of the season. The vacation problem has been found to be a troublesome one for many people, but has been decided in many instances in favor of camping as it has been proven to be both delightful and restful and at the same time inexpensive.

People in this vicinity who enjoy out-door life are fortunate in having the beautiful and convenient camping grounds which are found along White River and the Muscatatuck so close at hand. There are scores of places along the banks of the rivers and streams which are covered with a thick carpet of grass and afford ideal places for establishing a camp. The scenery in many places is far above the average to be found on small rivers and every condition exists for a pleasant outing. Excellent drinking water can be found almost any place along the river, and in many localities running spring water is available. Sufficient shade can also be found without much difficulty and this is a most important consideration in pitching the tents.

For several summers a number of camping parties from a distance have spent their vacations here and declare that there is no county in Indiana which affords better camping grounds than those found in this vicinity.

Usually in every camping party there are several disciples of Walton who consider especially the fishing conditions. In the waters of Jackson county several varieties of this sport are found. There are an abundance of bass which afford exciting hand line fishing and the trot-line and throw line may be used for landing the larger varieties. Nearly every summer catfish weighing from forty to sixty pounds are caught, and the large game fish are not uncommon.

Camping has become so popular with several of the local organizations and fishing clubs that they have selected good camping grounds where fine fishing may be enjoyed and have built convenient cabins which are occupied the greater part of the summer. There are also several cabins which can be rented and these are in such demand that it is not possible to secure them unless spoken for long in advance. Several persons have complete camping equipments which they rent during the season, and it is said that these are already rented for the greater part of the summer.

A few camps have already been established along the river, but the camping season will not reach its height until the latter part of July or the first of August.

The ninth event is a free for all and eight entries have been listed.

The event promises to be an interesting one and the Seymour car will be classed with some fast and powerful machines.

While the ceremony was in progress a number of the young people's friends decorated their buggy with tags and cards which announced that the couple had just been married.

More Serious Charges.

Griggs—Your lawyer made some very severe charges against the defendant, didn't he?

Briggs—Yes, but you ought to see how he charged me.

A Mysterious Phenomenon.

"Do you believe in reincarnation?" "I am tempted to. All the relatives whose funerals my employees attend during the baseball season reappear before winter."

CONFESSED IT HIMSELF.

Percy—Dubbs complains that after all his labor in behalf of the public he gets nothing for it.

Reggy—And that's more than he deserves. Nothing is too good for him. I have heard him say so himself.

The New China.

The dragon waited long before he 'gan to wake; But he will now, his slumbers o'er, Some records break.

Perhaps.

"I think," said Congressman Suggsley, rising to a point of order, "I scent a mare's nest in this thing."

"Oh, well," replied the speaker, "that's a horse of another color."

Easily Understood.

"Do you believe money talks?" "Yes."

"What does it say?" "To the average person it says: 'Spend me.'"

Foresight.

"How is it you were so successful with your catch in the fishing party when the rest couldn't get a thing?" "I invited the deaf and dumb girl in the party to go with me."

Disproving Maxims.

"She had chicken at one end of the table and canvasback duck at the other."

"Which shows there is no economy in making both ends meat."

Mean Comment.

"My wife made a man of me." "You needn't tell it. Anybody can see it was a home-made job."

Quite Dissimilar.

"Pilkins dotes on Epictetus." "Anything like flinch?"

Biggest Acorns in the World.

Nature is very prodigal in her gifts to tropical countries; vegetation grows with extraordinary profusion, and fruit and seeds are of an immense size. What is probably the largest acorn in the world, for instance, is found in Nék Guinea. Quite an ordinary Papuan acorn would be one and three-quarter inches in diameter, the cup being two and a quarter inches, and the falling acorn is capable of giving one quite a nasty knock on the head. The magnificent oaks which bear these giant acorns are veritable monarchs of the forest, and grow at an elevation of about three to four thousand feet.—From the July Wide World.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE

Indiana Music Teachers' Association Will Meet at Elkhart.

The Indiana Music Teachers' Association, of which Prof. H. C. Gast, of this city, is director will hold their annual meeting at Elkhart June 24-28. The program will open Monday evening, June 24, with the rendition of the oratorio, "Hymn of Praise" by the Elkhart choral society, an organization of forty voices, under the direction of Prof. H. W. Owen of Winona Lake.

Included in the opening program also is a recital by Edward Clarke, baritone; Kenneth Rose, violinist, with Sarah Suttell, pianist.

While the week's program for the convention contains many good things, the greatest and most expensive attraction has been engaged for Friday night, June 28, the closing night of the convention. At this time the Chicago Sunday evening choir of fifty voices will give a complete program. The choir will be assisted by Mabel Sharp Hernden, soprano soloist; Fredericka Gerhardt, contralto; Fred W. Frank, baritone, and Elias Bredin, tenor. The Chicago choir will come to Elkhart in a special car. The Music Teachers' Association is paying $1,500 for this attraction alone, and the program in its entirety is one of special high order. It is expected that the majority of the 1,600 members of the association will attend the convention in Elkhart. During their stay in Elkhart the music teachers will be elaborately entertained.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION AT CHICAGO

WILLIAM H. TAFT, Ohio

R. M. LA FOLLETTE, Wisconsin

A. B. CUMMINS, Iowa

THEO. ROOSEVELT, New York

By G. V. ANDREWS.

THE Republican national convention of 1912 will be the greatest in point of numbers in the history of the party and, the political prophets are agreed, the most momentous since war times. It will be the climax of a prenomination contest unrivaled in the annals of the United States, if not of the world. For anything like a parallel it is necessary to go back to the Chicago convention of 1880, when Conkling and Garfield were the dashing leaders of the opposing forces of General Grant, who had been put forth for a third term, and of John Sherman, Ohio's choice for the nomination, while Blaine loomed up as a formidable competitor. The faithful 306 delegates who stood fast for Grant have become almost as famous in American political as the Balaklava 600 are in British military history, and from this convention dated the factional strife of "stalwarts" and "half breeds" that rent the party and inspired the fanatic Guitau to take the life of Garfield, who, as a "dark horse," was the winner in the convention.

Popularity of "the Plumed Knight."

Barry Roosevelt in the zenith of his popularity, no Republican aspirant for the presidency since Lincoln has elicited such enthusiasm from his supporters as James G. Blaine. Unsuccessful in the conventions of 1876 and 1880, he secured the nomination in 1884, only to be defeated at the polls. He refused to be considered as a candidate in 1888, but in 1892, though stricken with a mortal disease, he allowed his name to go before the convention, where it evoked the most remarkable demonstration of enthusiasm that a Republican nominating assembly had ever known. But the crowds in the galleries could not vote, and the delegates on the floor when the storm of cheering had passed named Harrison for the presidency.

Since 1892 the Republican conventions have not been memorable for hard fought contests. McKinley at St. Louis in 1896 overcame all opposition on the first ballot. He was renominated without a contest at the Philadelphia convention in 1900, when Roosevelt was chosen to fill second place on the ticket. The latter's nomination in 1904 was a foregone conclusion, and the perfectly oiled machinery of the 1908 convention accomplished the nomination of Taft without a jar.

It is safe to predict that, whatever may happen at the Chicago Coliseum on June 18 and the days following, the proceedings will be distinctly different from those of any Republican convention of recent years.

Beginning of the Roosevelt Boom.

The Roosevelt boom may be said to have started with the announcement of "the seven governors" that they had summoned the colonel from his political retirement to assume the leadership of the "progressive" wing of the party and to propose himself for a third term as president. Having cast "his hat in the ring," the colonel delivered his "dés" to the conservatives (or the "reactionaries," as he prefers to call them) in his Columbus speech, "A Charter of Democracy," before the Ohio constitutional convention. This speech, intended to be the "keynote" of the pre-convention campaign, was chiefly remarkable for its setting forth of the decline of the recall of judicial decisions, which has ever since been one of the fighting issues of the factional contest. President Taft for some time refrained from answering the attacks made upon his administration by his former friend and political sponsor, but at Springfield, Mass., late in April he abandoned his policy of reticence and, declaring that his back was to the wall and that there was nothing for him to do but fight, replied to Colonel Roosevelt in kind. From that time on recriminations and counter-recriminations have been banded between the two old friends in a manner to make the American public sit up.

Work to Be Done at Chicago.

On June 18 1,078 men and women (for delegates from the suffragist states will have seats in the convention) will assemble in the Chicago Coliseum.

Each state is represented by twice as many delegates as it has votes in the electoral college. Thus Oregon, which has five electoral votes, one for each of its two senators and one for each of its three representatives in congress, has ten delegates. Alaska, Porto Rico, the Philippines and the District of Columbia have two each and Hawaii six.

First of all, the national committee, in which Taft influence is supposed to be preponderant, must sit to pass upon the credentials of would be delegates. The temporary roll of the convention will be made up by this body, and it will determine the procedure of the first session and the choice of temporary chairman. After the temporary chairman has made his speech, resolutions will be in order, the committee, including one on resolutions, another on credentials and a third on permanent organization, will be named. The first is charged with the drafting of the platform, the second with the claims of representatives of rival factions to votes in the convention and the third with the recommendation of a permanent presiding officer.

Senator Elihu Root of New York has been mentioned for this honor. The committee on credentials will report at the opening of the second session. If the debate on the platform is long and heated there will be another recess before final action is taken upon it. The platform out of the way, nominations for the first place on the ticket will be in order. This will be the occasion for the big speeches of the convention. It is expected that W. B. Harding of Ohio, last year's unsuccessful candidate for the Buckeye governorship, will place President Taft in nomination, and that Comptroller Prendergast of New York city, who made the most fiery speech of the New York state convention, when he championed the cause of Colonel Roosevelt, will present the name of the rough riding ex-president. These speeches will give the thousands in the galleries their opportunity for participation in the big show. "Demonstrations" of shouts, flag wavings and the like, in which the enthusiasm is gauged by the number of minutes the din continues, have become familiar in recent years. Afterward comes the nomination of the candidate for vice president, which is greeted with modified enthusiasm, for, although three Republican vice presidents have been elevated to the chief magistracy by the death of presidents, comparatively little popular interest is awakened in the choice of the man who has second place on the ticket.

"And so home and to bed," as Mr. Pepps would say. At any rate, after his strenuous days in Chicago, that will be the best place for the average delegate.

The "Three P's" in This Campaign.

Most important of the unusual features of the early stages of the presidential campaign of 1912 has been the preferential presidential primary. Agitation for direct primaries as a means of foiling the machinations of bosses has been acute for several years, but this is the first presidential contest in which this device for ascertaining the popular will has figured. Even now, in spite of the attention they have attracted, real preferential primaries for the selection of presidential candidates are established by law in only a small minority of the states. The first state to enact a presidential primary law was Oregon in 1910. The other states which have adopted the innovation in some form or another are California, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Jersey, North and South Dakota and Wisconsin. Pennsylvania and Ohio have not preferential primaries in the ordinary sense of the term. They choose congress district delegates to the national convention by primary, but leave the election of delegates at large to a state convention, in accordance with old usage.

Maine and Michigan have preferential primary laws, but they were not operative in this year's campaign. "Voluntary" presidential primaries are in vogue in several states, including Kansas, Georgia, Florida and Rhode Island. In all the states the agitation for the new system was led by the supporters of Roosevelt and Wilson.

North Dakota Brand of Primary.

In North Dakota no restrictions are imposed upon legal voters. Any man may express his preference without regard to his party affiliations at the last election. The North Dakota law requires the delegates to take an oath to vote in exact accordance with their instructions. This means that they cannot shift their vote from La Follette, to whom they are pledged, to any other candidate whose name may come before the convention, nor could they under the terms of the law vote to make unanimous the vote for any other candidate, even though all the other delegates should so vote. This provision, however, is of little practical effect since the delegates, if they ignored it, would be amenable to no punishment under the penal code and since, if they were held to have committed an offense, it would come under the jurisdiction of Illinois and not of North Dakota.

The Illinois primary, which played so important a part in the successes of Colonel Roosevelt, was the result of the passage of an emergency bill signed by Governor Deneen on a sickbed late in March. Under its provisions the vote of each congress district is advisory to the national convention delegates from that district, and the vote of the state at large is advisory to the delegates at large. Petitions for candidates must bear no fewer than 1,500 names.

A National Primary Proposed.

An objection frequently made to the state presidential primary is that it forces the unit rule upon the delegates and nullifies the instruction of the communities which elected the delegates who are in the minority. This objection has been met by the proposition that, instead of state primaries to express a preference for a presidential nominee, national presidential primaries should be held. Senator Cummins this spring introduced a bill to that effect, which failed to excite much enthusiasm in the senate. It proposed a national primary to be held on July 8 and every four years thereafter on the second Monday of July. The results of such a primary election would be canvassed by a "national board for primary elections," and the candidate of each political party receiving the greatest number of votes would be certified by that board as the candidate to be voted upon in the November elections.

The bill would require primary elections of candidates for president, vice president and presidential electors. The names of candidates on primary ballots under the bill would be arranged in separate columns, with one column headed "Independent of party."

If it were passed the Cummins bill would mean the end of the national conventions of the great parties. More than that, it would probably mean the abolition of the electoral college and of the possibility of the election of a presidential candidate who has actually received a smaller popular vote than his unsuccessful opponent.

Among the objections urged against the new primary system is its failure, as its opponents allege, to bring a large proportion of the voters to the polls. The vote in North Dakota was small, and that in New York, which had a primary characterized by Colonel Roosevelt as "a criminal farce," was much smaller comparatively. In Illinois and Pennsylvania, however, the general interest displayed and the size of the vote polled were such as to give little color to this objection.

An Unprecedented Spectacle.

If it has done nothing else the first trial of the presidential primary has furnished the people of the United States a new experience. Never before have a president and an ex-president "stumped" the country in a contest for delegates. After trips to Massachusetts and Maine in the interests of his candidacy Colonel Roosevelt visited Illinois on the eve of the primary election and reaped the reward of his diligence in the overwhelming victory in the Prairie State which gave his candidacy its first decided impetus. Then came the upheaval in Pennsylvania, to which he had given some personal attention, though not so much as to Illinois. As the date of the Massachusetts primaries approached, both the colonel and the president decided that an important job of fence mending called them to the Bay State, and they conducted their repairing operations—strangely enough, as it appeared to the onlookers—with hammer and tongs. The result was so little decisive (many of the Massachusetts voters, by the way, being apparently unequal to the task of casting their ballots according to their real preferences) that both contestants decided to continue their joint debate at long range tactics in Maryland and Ohio. Maryland went—somewhat gingerly, to be sure—for Roosevelt, and the president's advisers thought that the result might have been different if their candidate had talked offener and more strenuously.

So when Roosevelt invaded Ohio, the president's own state, the latter prepared to defend his candidacy with all the energy that a farmer displays when the boys of the neighborhood have served notice of a raid on his watermelon patch. The personalities of the Maryland and Massachusetts struggles were outdone as the two came to grips on the hustings of the Buckeye State. The result justified the president's apprehensions. The audacious invader did get away with the better part of his melons.

Neither Taft nor Roosevelt entered in person into the primary contest in California. The striking feature of its pre-election campaign was the large participation of women, who must be credited with a share in Roosevelt's decisive victory in the newest suffrage state.

The Four Formal Candidates.

Of the four formal candidates for the nomination at Chicago President Taft entered the race with the strongest backing, for in addition to the advantage generally supposed to reside in the support of the head of an administration by the officeholders he had in his favor the tradition that a president is entitled to a renomination. In his fifty-five years William H. Taft has seen much public service, the earlier part of it in judicial positions. He refused an appointment to the supreme court, offered him by President Roosevelt in 1903; but, having previously served as head of the Philippine commission and first civil governor of the Philippines, he accepted the position of secretary of war in the Roosevelt cabinet in 1904. He was nominated for the presidency in 1908, his predecessor throwing all his influence to accomplish that result.

Theodore Roosevelt is the youngest of the candidates, his age being fifty-four. He has put a good deal of living into those fifty-four years too. He has been cowpuncher, police commissioner of New York, assistant secretary of the navy, colonel of rough riders in Cuba, governor of New York, vice president and then president for the better part of two terms, winning his election over Parker by the largest popular majority ever awarded a candidate. In the midst of his strenuous activities as president Colonel Roosevelt found time to bring about the reconciliation of Japan and Russia and thus won the Nobel peace prize of $40,000, with which he endowed the foundation for industrial peace.

More than any other name that of Robert Marion La Follette is identified with what is known as the "progressive" movement in Republican politics. He gained popularity in his native state, Wisconsin, while still a young man (he is now fifty-seven), and since his first two terms as governor (he resigned in 1905, after election for a third time, to become United States senator) has been master of the political situation in the Badger State. He is now serving his second term in the senate. He was one of the earliest advocates of direct nominations.

Albert Baird Cummins, senator from Iowa, is the oldest of the four candidates, having been born sixty-two years ago. Like President Taft and Senator La Follette, he is a lawyer. He has been thrice elected governor of Iowa, and in that office, as during his two terms in the senate, he has been one of the leaders of the "advanced" wing of the Republican party.

CHAPTER VIII.

Wearry Weeks of Waiting.

WHEN began the weary weeks—and months, it seemed to me of us—of waiting. The excitement of enlisting and drilling the men, organizing the companies and getting the recruits uniformed acted on me like a tonic. I ceased to brood over my disappointment, and, while my love for Miss Ellen was as great as ever, yet I felt that I had regained my manhood, and the war spirit, once aroused in me, drove me like a master. The day of quitting the state was a sad one for many, but it was not so for me. My heart bounded with joy when the order for our movement was read at headquarters. Of all the officers I think I was the only one whose departure was not blessed with tears of mother, sister or sweetheart. My father, now old and feeble, came to see me, and his eyes became wet as he beheld me for the first time in my uniform and folded me in his arms. My mother had long been dead—in fact, I could scarcely remember her at all. Before saying goodbye to my father I gave him a letter and made him promise that should anything happen to me he would send it to the address on the envelope.

He looked at me sadly for a moment and said:

"Does she live in the south, Howard, and is that why you have stayed away so long?"

I told him yes and turned away my head that he might not see what it had cost me to speak of her. He laid his hand gently on my shoulder and said, "We Palmers have never been lucky there, my son," and I thought I understood many little things in his life and knew then why he never had anything but what was kind to say of that southern country when he heard it under discussion. I grasped his hand and held it for a moment.

"May God protect you and bring you safe to me again," was all he said and left me.

Our regiment was only ordered to Camp Meade, but it was a start. The days there were dreary ones, and I shall never forget the shout our boys put up when the order which turned our face to Camp Thomas, at Chickamauga, was read to them. It set our blood on fire, and I cannot repress my feelings of state pride even now when I recall the happy faces of those Bay State fellows as they prepared to shoulder their muskets and start for the south. A majority of the regiment wanted to be brigaded with other regiments from Massachusetts, but with wisdom and foresight the chief executive commanded that the troops from the north should be brigaded with those from the south and west. It was a wise policy that threw the men from Michigan with those from Texas, and those from California with those from Maine and Vermont, and the men from Massachusetts with the honest fellows from Georgia. The spirit of friendship which had been growing for over thirty years was to be cemented by an alliance against a common enemy. This was how we found ourselves in the same brigade with a Georgia regiment and with another from Kentucky.

We mingled with one another from the first on friendly terms; we shared one another's rations and nursed one another's sick. I met every Georgian with an outstretched hand, for I felt somehow that they had claims on me which the others did not possess. The individual was lost in that great, crowded camp, and those with whom I talked of the Turpins did not seem to know them. But I was destined to hear news of my friends much sooner than I thought.

I had been sent to division headquarters one day with a message from my colonel. As I stepped under the awning of the tent I saw an officer in a major's uniform sitting at a table reading some reports. The face was partially in shadow, but I saw at once that it was Bud.

How much he knew I did not know. I was eager to learn. He saw me before I spoke, and, not waiting, as I had done, he leaped from the table, scattering the contents over the floor, and rushed to me with arms outstretched. Impulsively he threw one arm around my neck and with the other grasped my hand. He saw how deep my feeling was and did not speak at once.

"Bud," I asked finally, "how are all at the Pines?" It was the question which was most natural to my lips, for I had been hungering, yet dreading, to hear news of them.

"About the same. Nothing ever changes there," he said.

"Your father and mother?" I asked.

"Both are well, thank God?"

"And Miss Ellen?" I ventured.

For a moment his face clouded when he told me she was not like what she used to be. Then suddenly, as if some idea had shot across his mind for the first time, he dropped my hand and, looking me squarely in the face, said:

"She has never been the same since you were there." He seemed suddenly to stiffen with dignity as he added: "Palmer, if I thought your visit there had wrought this change heaven only knows what I would do. Before taking my hand again answer me honestly, Palmer, did you trifle with my little sister when you were with us at the Pines?"

"Before God I did not!" I cried. "She rejected my love, and that is why I left so suddenly. I will tell you all about it, Bud, as I wanted to do before I left," I said.

"I believe you, Palmer," he said, laying his hand on my shoulder again.

He Rushed to Me With Arms Outstretched.

"But keep your secret, whatever it may be, for it is hers also, and you have no right to betray it."

I grasped his hand again and stood looking out into the dusty camp street and over the hills in the distance.

"Who is with them?" I asked presently.

"My younger brother, little Brent. He is keeping the family alive while I am doing what I can to keep alive his reputation," he said with an attempt at humor that cut me like a knife. "You may not know how we feel about this sort of thing down here," he added, "but to us it is quite as dear as life itself."

He then told me that it was Miss Ellen who had urged him to go to the front and who had given him the strength to leave the Pines. From his colonel I learned afterward that he had enlisted as a private, but was soon given a commission for an excellent record, and he owed his present place to his ability to handle men and not to political influences.

After that first meeting we saw each other daily, and when not on duty together we would light our pipes and wander through the dusty and fever-stricken streets, smoke and talk of home, but never did we speak of Ellen, though she was constantly in my thoughts and I believe in her brother's also.

Disease had broken out in camp, and typhoid raged with deadly effect during that long, cruel summer. One evening I went to bed feverish and not feeling myself at all. The day had been one of horror in the camp, and dispatches were flying between headquarters and the war department. The evening shades brought no relief to the tired soldiers. No one seemed to be asleep, and the men were stretched outside their dog tents. The ground was dry and hot, and the moon hung in the heavens like a great ball of fire. Just as the midnight hour was called I heard some one in the direction of the Kentucky regiment, that lay across the road from us, begin to whistle the "Old Kentucky Home." The notes fell sweet and clear across the tented field. Before he had finished a bar some one took up the tune and whistled a second. One after another joined in the melody, and finally there was hardly a man in the regiment, so it seemed to me, who was not whistling. It died away as suddenly as it had been inspired, and I think the camp slept with sweeter rest for having heard the serenade. I fell into a fitful sleep and waked to partial consciousness only when reveille was sounded.

I made an effort to rise, but fell back, too weak to move again. The surgeon came in shortly after that and took my temperature. It was with a sickening sense of humiliation that I heard him say that it was a bad case of fever. Before I could be moved Bud came in, and I learned afterward that he feared I would be taken down. I turned my eyes to him in mute appeal. He touched my hand kindly, and I drew him near me.

"If I should die, Bud, will you tell Miss Ellen that I have always loved her and that my last thoughts were of her?" I said in a half whisper.

He pressed my hand for an answer and placed his other on my fevered temple. I heard him ask the doctor to let him have charge of this patient. "His life is dearer than my own," he said. I saw the surgeon nod his head and heard him add that it would take great nursing to pull me through.

It was the last thing I remember for many a day. I heard afterward how he nursed me; how he slept by my cot at night and sat by it all day. Afterward he told me that I talked only of the Pines in my delirium, and for the first time he had learned that it was I who had taken up the mortgage and reduced the interest. The day came when the surgeons despaired of my life, and then it was that he telegraphed his sister. I have that faded bit of paper on which he wrote the message framed and hanging over my desk and underneath it her answer.

"Lieutenant Palmer lying at point of death. Your name incessantly on his lips. Don't come if you think best, but it might save his life," was what he sent.

The answer was even shorter. It read simply, "Keep him alive until I reach there."

They told me that her nursing saved my life. One touch from her hand and my delirium would subside, and, though I lay unconscious for days, she took little rest, and when she would lie down it was Bud who would take her place at my side.

One morning just after orders came for my regiment to start for Cuba my eyes opened to the world and my senses returned. Bud was by my side. I knew then that Miss Ellen had been there, for the influence of her presence was with me still.

"Where is she?" I asked.

"Getting a little needed rest," he answered. "The crisis was passed last night, and she knows you are saved to her."

The big, strong fellow could stand it no longer. He knelt by my bed and, holding my hand, buried his face in the covering. I knew that he was weeping for very joy for his sister.

"Bud," I whispered, "has she for given?"

"Yes, Howard," he said. "She has told you so herself many a time in the long watches of the night."

I lapsed into unconsciousness again, and when I awoke Miss Ellen was by my side. She it was who told me that my regiment was going and held my hand in sympathy, for she knew how it would hurt me to be left behind. She read me the president's noble words of praise for the men who had answered to the call for troops and, drawing from her pocket a little slip of paper, read me what the executive had to say of those who had fallen ill with fever and who had served their country only in the camp. It was only a short message from our president in answer to an invitation to come to Chickamauga, but it cheered many a poor fellow who, as I, lay stricken with the fever and who was forced to see his comrades march away to duty at the front. It was the message just as it came, and as she read it her eyes filled with tears:

Executive Mansion, Washington.
Major General Commanding Camp Thomas, Chickamauga:

Replying to your invitation, I beg to say that it would give me great pleasure to show by a personal visit to Chickamauga park my high regard for the 40,000 troops of your command who so patriotically responded to the call for volunteers and who have been for upward of two months making ready for any service and sacrifice the country might require. My duties, however, will not admit of absence from Washington at this time. The highest tribute that can be paid to the soldier is to say that he performed his full duty. The field of duty is determined by his government, and wherever that chance to be is the place of honor. All have helped in the great cause, whether with fever in camp or in battle, and when peace comes all will be alike entitled to the nation's gratitude.

WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

After that she talked to me of the Pines, and then it was she told me she had never read my letters to her, that she was afraid she might forgive me and that she did not want to do that even in her heart. When I was strong enough to sit up I was given a leave, and it was Miss Ellen herself who undertook to make all arrangements for my journey to the Pines, for it was there that I wanted to go to recuperate. Finally the day came when my regiment was to move. I was propped up with pillows that I might see it break camp and march away.

When I Awoke, Miss Ellen Was by My Side.

"Ellen," I said as I saw the last company, the one to which I belonged, fall into fours, "but for you I could not stand that," pointing to the retreating regiment.

She turned to me, and, making a low courtesy, as she had done that April night now many months ago, she said, smiling all the while through her tears: "You were not made for a soldier, my lord. You have been forced to lay aside the sword. You must take up the pen again."

And then I knew for the first time that she had not only forgiven me, but that at last she had understood.

CONGRESS BLOCKED ON TARIFF PROGRAM

Senate and House at Parting of Ways.

Washington, June 13.—On its action repealing the Canadian reciprocity act, including the free print-paper provision, the senate voted, 33 to 27 to "stand pat." When the bill revising the steel schedule was sent over from the house with a message notifying the senate that the house had refused to concur in the senate amendments and asked for a conference, Senator Simmons of North Carolina, Democratic tariff leader, moved that the senate recede from the amendment repealing the Canadian act, but the motion was voted down and on the motion of Senator Lodge the bill was sent to the conference committee of the two houses with the senate insisting on its reciprocity amendment.

Congress is certain to be deadlocked on that question. The opponents of reciprocity have reached an agreement on a $2 rate per ton on print paper, the world over. They have served notice on the other side that they will permit no tariff legislation to go to the president unless it carries with it an appeal of the Canadian reciprocity act, including the free print-paper provision. To this end they declare they will offer amendments to each of the tariff bills as they come up in the senate, provided the conferees do not retain the provision in the bill revising the steel schedule. The house Democrats will not consent to the amendment repealing the reciprocity law, and it looks now as if the entire Democratic program of tariff legislation would be blocked by this issue.

Senators Take Further Action in the Matter of Commerce Court.

Washington, June 13.—The senate has gone on record in favor of the application of the legislative recall to federal judges. Not satisfied with the work of Tuesday, when the senate adopted the house provision wiping the United States commerce court out of existence, the senators went further than the house and took action looking to the retirement to private life of the five judges of the United States circuit court created by the commerce court act to serve in the commerce court.

The action taken by the senate is undoubtedly in line with the sentiment of the house and probably will be concurred in by the house in conference unless the able lawyers of both houses finally decide that the proposed legislation would be unconstitutional and ineffective. It can be said, however, that President Taft has already determined to veto the big appropriation bill when it comes to him if it carries any legislation to kill or cripple the commerce court.

The evidence in the Ruddick divorce case, which has been in progress at Greensburg for some time, has been completed and the arguments by the attorneys are being made. These will probably not be concluded before tomorrow. The plaintiff, B. S. Ruddick, asks for a divorce from his wife, Laura Ella Ruddick. In a cross-complaint the defendant asks for a decree and demands alimony in the sum of $25,000. In the testimony of the defendant it was necessary to use the tax books of the city of Columbus, and a sensation was sprung when it was found that some of the figures had been altered. EXPRESS CAR

On B. & O. S-W. Reported Robbed Near Milan.

It is reported that express car of the United States Express Company was robbed near Milan Tuesday night. The car was filled with valuable merchandise and other goods at Cincinnati and the door was sealed. The car was on the B. & O. S-W. west-bound passenger train No. 3.

As the train proceeded the thief leaped to the rear of the express car and was seen by several of the railroad men, but too late to capture him.

Further on the road other men saw him tampering with the door, and Milan, Ind., the first stop, was telegraphed to be on the look out for the fellow.

When the train arrived there the side door was found to have been smashed open, but the robber was gone, evidently having leaped from the train when it slowed up for Milan. A hole had been made in the door, after which the thief reached in and opened the lock. Just what is missing will not be known until the contents of the car are checked up, but it is believed the thief had an idea of certain valuables in the car and successfully planned to get possession of them.

Uses of Nitrate of Soda. Sodium Nitrate is the only nitrogen salt that can be used in solution, as all the other soluble salts of nitrogen become fixed as soon as they come in contact with the soil. However, they become available in a short time. The released sodium may correct soil acidity or may liberate calcium, potassium or magnesium from the soil.
